Lieutenant Mounteney-Jephson, the author, was one of Mr. Stanley's officers in the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition. and when Mr. Stanley found it necessary to return through the Great Forest for the missing and ill-fated rear column of the expedition, he sent Lieutenant Jephson with 20 men to carry to Emin Pasha's followers and troops in quatoria, at the stations which he had established in the Province, the message of relief, and to explain Stanley's mission of rescue. He was there when the Rebellion broke out, and both he and the Governor were made prisoners while anarchy reigned in the Province.

Mr. Jephson's narrative of exciting incidents is as thrilling as his description of the character of the people and soldiers is interesting. His book is so graphic and detailed a picture of the body. He weaves into his parrative much interesting information about the birds and wild animals, the surface and resources of the country, habits and customs of the natives, modes of warfare, etc. No more interesting book on Alfrican exploration and adventure has ever been written. Mr. Stanley says of it: "There is within the covers of your volume much matter that is new to me, much that is extremely thrilling and exciting, and the whole is related with very enviable literary tact and skill." The book is sold only by subscription, and persons desiring to secure agencies will find the publishers' announcement in another column.
